Foreword

Back in 1716 the town of Wells was indicted for having no schoolmaster and accordingly fined. The following year saw the birth of the Wells School System. For many years after this students met in private houses, but the town later provided several one room school houses at widespread locations. Two wooden school houses, both which burned, preceded the present high school. Finally, just thirty years ago, our present high school was completed.

With this yearbook we will attempt, by use of flashback photos and printed history, to trace the growth of Wells High School to its present standing. This book should bring back old memories to past graduates, be a literary monument to this year's graduating class, and show graduates of the future a glimpse of what is in store for them.

We the staff of the 1967 Abenaki sincerely hope we achieve our goal of providing hours of enjoyment to the reader.

Dedication

This year the Senior Class proudly dedicates the 1967 Abenaki to a teacher who, as an advisor to our class, has aided and coun-ciled in all group activities as well as in individual problems.

Her cheerful devotion to her work the past three years has endeared her to all.
Therefore, we find it only fitting that we should dedicate this year's Abenaki to Mrs.
Harriet Clark.

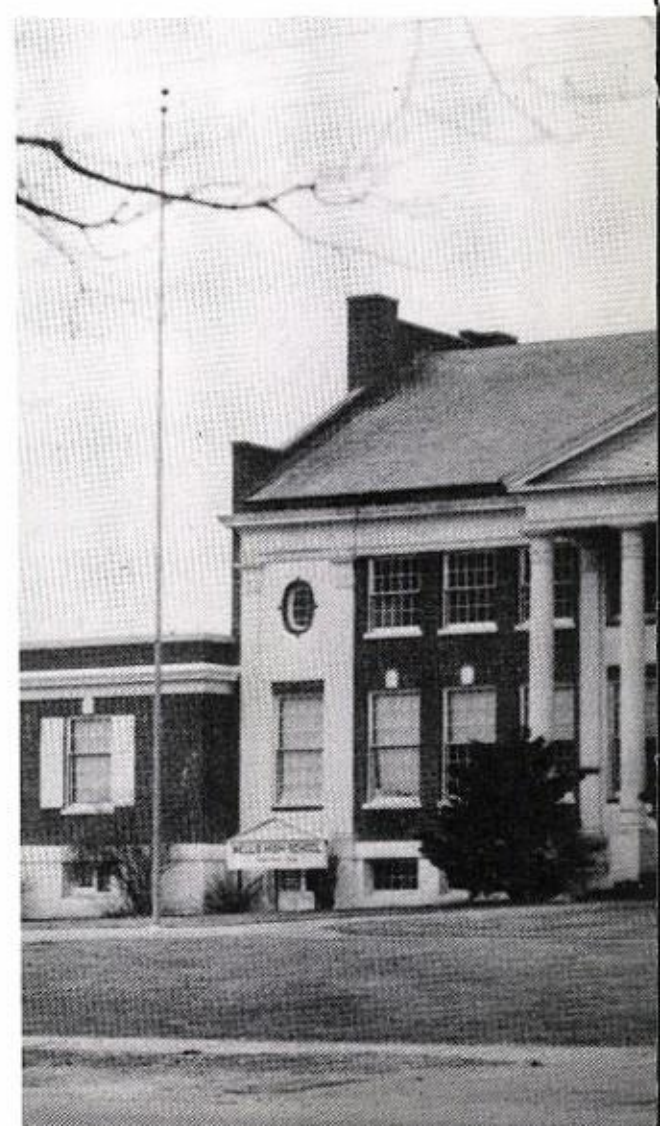

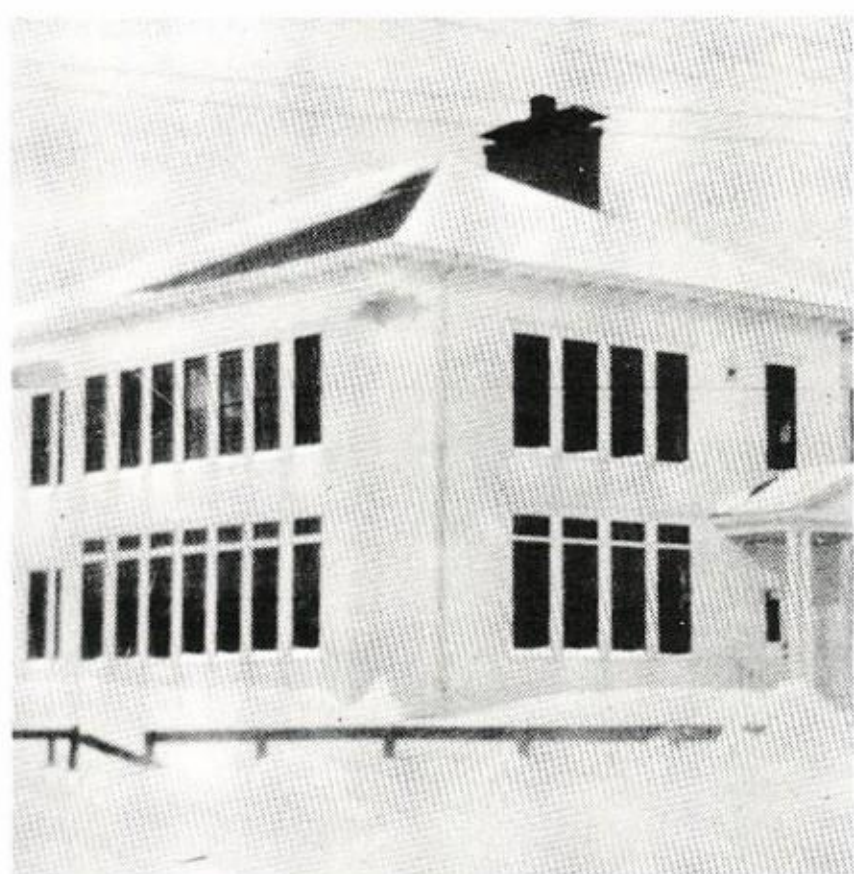

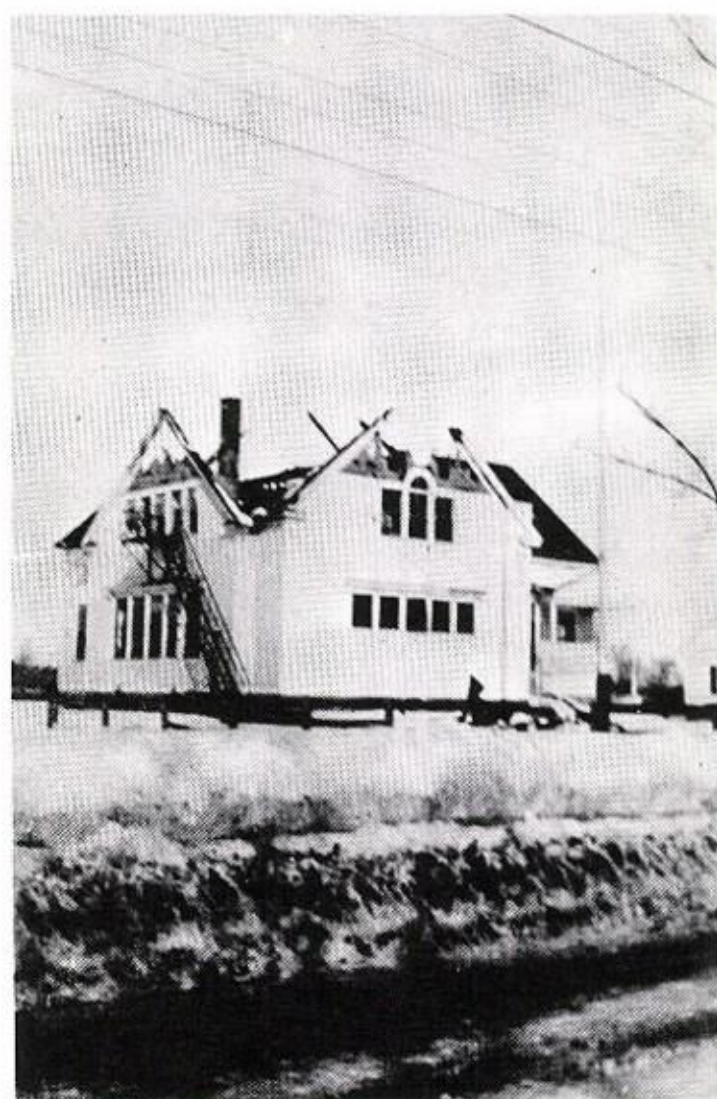

History

The following individuals are members of that first graduating class at Wells High School in 1903:

Class of 1921

Row One: Alice M. Moody, Dorothy M. Hatch, Paul L. Staples.

Row Two: Principal Paul Hayes McIntire, Clarence M. Littlefield, Lucy M. Snow, Ellwyn K. Houston, Gladys M. Hill.

The history of the Wells High School System began on March 20, 1715, when it was voted to hire a schoolmaster for all of Wells, his pay not to exceed twenty pounds per year, or sixty-five dollars, which is about one one-hundredth of a teacher's salary today.

School was to be taught for one-quarter of the year in Ogunquit, one-quarter of the year in Wells Branch, and one-half of the year in the center of town. School was in session the year round, except for several one- and two-week vacations. At first school was held in private homes, but in 1731 the citizenry of Ogunquit built the first one room schoolhouse in the area, followed by several other schools around town. Notable among these were the schools at Wells Branch, Merryland Ridge, and the center of town.

In 1750 the schools were expanding, so the faculty was doubled. Now two teachers were to cover Ogunquit, Merryland, Kennebunk, (Wells Branch), and the other areas. The increase in teachers brought about an increase in the number of pupils attending school. From an original three students, the number jumped to forty-seven in 1879, fifty-nine in 1891, up to the present two hundred and fifty average enrollment.

The Nineteenth Century saw the building of a Central High School for Wells. The high school was small and wooden, but a proud addition to the Wells community. Years later when the first building burned, a second school was built at the same site. In 1937 the present structure, excluding a wing added in the Forties, was constructed directly behind the second wooden structure which burned shortly after.

The history of Wells High School has been a proud and illustrious one in all aspects. Scholars have flourished today as in past years. This is proven by the graduates of Wells who went on to Harvard, Yale, Syracuse, and Bowdoin. Wells still, even to this day, consistently turns out National Merit Semi-finalists and honors recipients. Large scholarships are not uncommon among Wells graduates.

Wells High School has also proven itself in athletics. The Warriors were state track champs in thirteen out of a fourteen year span, football (six-man) champs, basketball state-runners-up, and for the last four years Western Division Champs in baseball. Records set ten or twelve years ago by Wells athletes, such as Ty Chick and Charlie Macdonald, are just today being broken.

Just glance through these pictures of the past and compare them to the pictures of the present. If you are an alumnus of Wells, you will agree that Wells has improved as a school worthy of the praise bestowed upon it by the inhabitants of Wells. This year the class motto of "While we live, let us learn" is typical of the purpose for the existence of Wells High School.

Administration

Each June at the end of another school year we breathe a sigh of relief and congratulate each other on completing another tough year of school. However, we quite often forget the many hours put in by our faithful faculty, making this a better school in which to be educated. From them we have learned many qualities of good citizenship. Always ready to help, or just to listen, the faculty deserves the great amount of respect that we have for them.

SCHOOL BOARD

Mr. Philip Grover, Superintendent of Schools, Mr. John Miller, Mr. Charles Andres, Mr. Marshall Boston.

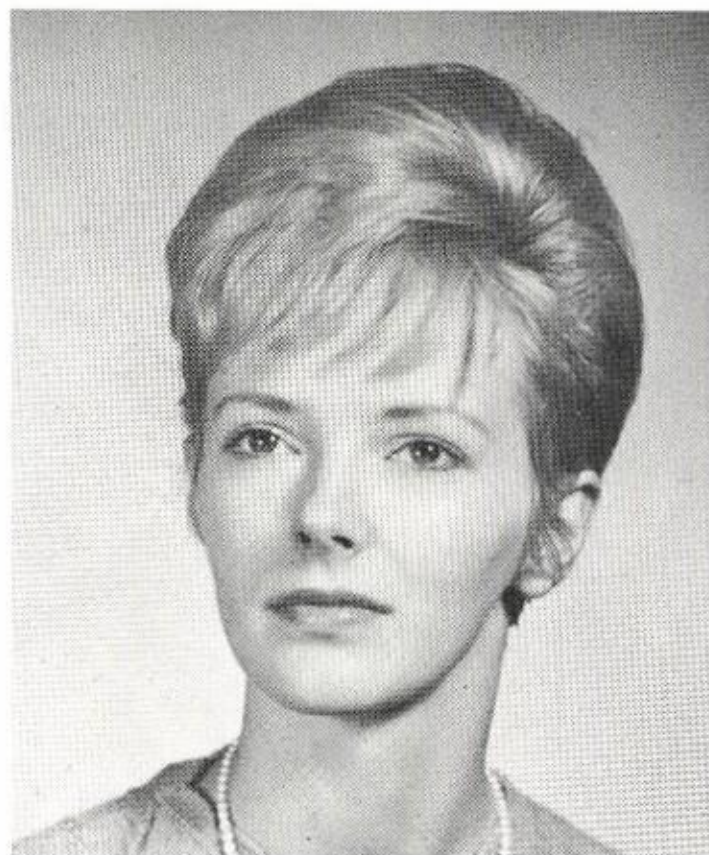

Looking back on this year, today's students will remember some inconveniences and much hard work.

Let us hope, however, that all of us will have much more reason to remember the opportunities we have had and the worth of what we have accomplished.

MARSHALL C. BOSTON
Chairman 1966-67

MR. PHILIP GROVER
Superintendent of Schools

MRS. DRUSILLA RENDA
Secretary

To the Graduating Class of 1967:

To the Class of 1967:

May I extend to each of the graduates my best wishes for success in your future education, in your chosen occupation, or in some cases, success in fulfilling your military obligation.

I sincerely hope your years of educational preparation will be of invaluable assistance to you in your immediate future as well as in your adult life. Usually, the value received is determined by the degree of effort expended by each individual. Those of you who have been conscientious, ambitious and who have exhibited initiative and leadership will have received the greatest value from your education. I hope each of you has attempted to perform under these conditions.

"Anything worth doing, is worth doing well". This adage is a valuable philosophy, not only in relation to your formal education, but also in any process attempted in adult life.

Sincerely yours,

PHILIP P. GROVER
Superintendent of Schools

MATTHEW J. FLAHERTY
Principal

MRS. DORIS F. LITCHFIELD
Secretary to the Principal

To the Graduating Class of 1967:

Yours is the class which experienced its high school years during a period of world-wide political, scientific, sociological and educational revolution. During your tenure, the Negroes, in America as elsewhere, refused to tolerate slow change for attaining equality. Instead they resorted to rapid, forceful and, for the most part, non-violent methods. Your novel hair styles, both boys' and girls', and your exotic dancing and music reflect this quick-change attitude that is characteristic of the time.

This revolution hit our school in the form of PSSC Physics, BSCS Biology, modern math, overhead projectors and team teaching. The greater impact is yet to come, for the language laboratory, closed circuit T.V. and teaching machines are about to be added to our teaching materials and techniques.

Next summer and fall the majority of you will continue your education in school and colleges outside of Wells; you never again will meet as a complete group. Your new classmates will have experienced the similar change that you have. Since quick change is a trait of your times, quick adjustment to change is a necessity for your success. I hope that your experiences in Wells High School have had a significant, positive effect for preparing you to meet and adjust to a rapidly changing world.

In your future endeavor, I wish you success.

Sincerely,

Matthew J. Flaherty

VANCE L. NICHOLS
Guidance

As your Director of Guidance I am writing to express my sincere thanks for the assistance you have given this department during the past two years. Whatever success we have enjoyed is due, in large part, to the cooperative spirit of the Wells High School students, your demand for a better education, and your sense of civic responsibility.

We also want to extend our congratulations to each of you on the occasion of your commencement; an occasion which reflects great credit on you, your instructors, and your families.

It is our sincere wish that the years which lie ahead of you will be happy and successful.

Sincerely,

JOHN J. HANAGAN

Seniors

To the underclassmen:

Four years ago we entered the halls of Wells High School unknowing but willing to learn the secrets it held within. In our tenure here, we have won great victories but also we have suffered defeats. We learned how to live and how to let live. It is with great pride and humility that we, the graduating Class of 1967, leave Wells High. Our only wish is that you, the underclassmen, progress through these halls learning, as we and others before us did, the secrets it holds in store for you.

Classes

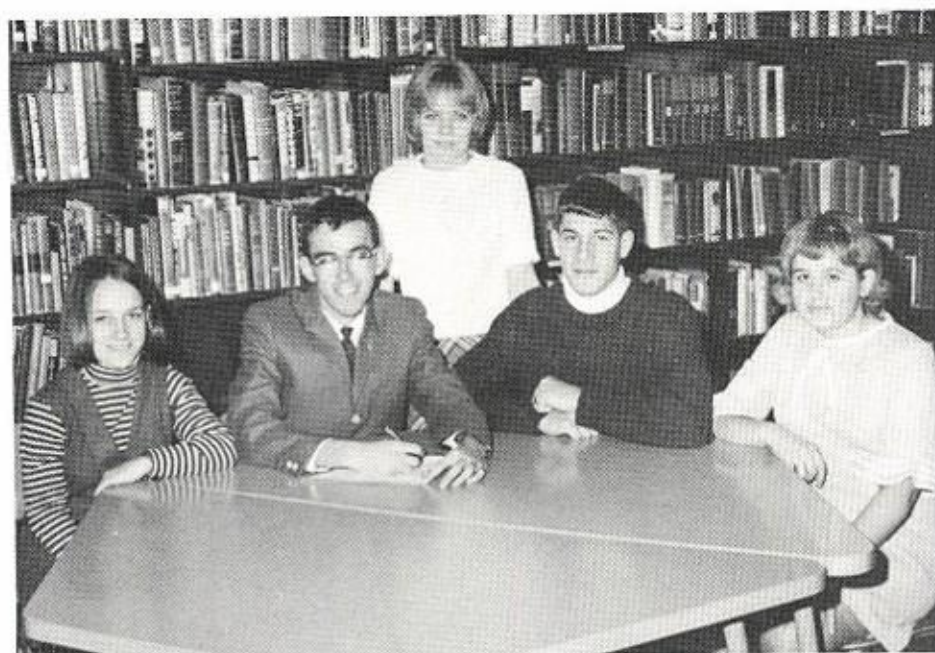

Our school is truly based on advancing ideas in education, but in the midst of the fast pace of change one thing remains the same. The school is made up of four different classes. The freshmen are new arrivals, barely accustomed to the fun and work found in high school; the sophomores, firmly entrenched in this system, are stepping forth with a new zeal; the juniors, while learning and participating in all activities, are preparing for the day they become "mighty seniors"; the seniors are now making final preparations to enter into the world and test the skills Wells High School has taught them.

Though we have professed to being happy at leaving Wells High this year, we will really miss the hustle and the bustle of school life. Our four years in high school have left us with a great sense of humility and endowed us with the necessary traits for existing in the fast-moving world we are about to enter.

Who will ever forget the great minstrel show, the Sophomore Follies, and last year's Junior-Senior Prom, which were all activities sponsored by this class?

Now that we must leave Wells High School, we feel assured the high tradition set forth by our class will be carried on by the juniors.

Pst! Pst, Tom!

We are the Junior class, the rebels and extremists of this school. We are an adventuresome and daring lot. There is nothing which pleases any one of us more than to do something new, to see something new, or to feel something new. We reject anything which to us feels too traditional or too restricted. Our greatest ambition is to make Wells a part of the world outside.

Funds for our class were raised this year through the sale of books and pens.

Freshman

This year's Freshman class was fortunate in being allowed to conduct the candy drive sponsored annually by one of the classes at the high school. The money received from these sales along with class dues was put into the class treasury. It is hoped that food sales and other planned activities will add to this fund.

As underclassmen, the Freshmen were initiated by the Juniors. The initiation was well conducted, and due to the cooperation of both the Juniors and Freshmen, it was announced that the custom of initiation would again be allowed.

The Freshmen are well represented in almost all school activities, from track to the chess club. They look forward to their next three years at Wells High School, the years which will shape their future lives.

Activities

No student of Wells High School can truthfully say he has nothing to do or nothing to participate in at school. Eight major sports as well as several minor ones are open to any boy or girl. The All-School Play, cheering squad, a dance, or the Junior-Senior Prom are other typical activities in which one may participate.

The success of these many programs shows not only the spirit of the participants, but also the great pride and patronage of the spectators.

It is through these extracurricular activities that we discover our talents, develop both in personalities and leadership, and further our understanding of the world we will enter.

Abenaki

The Abenaki Staff of 1967 proudly presents this anniversary yearbook to you. Many long hours of planning, typing, and proof reading have gone into this yearbook. All of the organizations, classes, and activities are included along with our faithful and hard working faculty.

We sincerely hope all our efforts will result in many hours of enjoyment and pleasant memories to the reader in years to come.

The Band

This year the band, under the fine supervision of Mr. Spencer, entertained at many functions, such as the Christmas concert and several of our home football games. In their new uniforms they have added to the enjoyment of all. All members are working for and anticipating the Annual Western Maine Music Festival.

Your Move.

Chess Club

The Chess Club directed by its new advisor Mr. Hoppe has undertaken new activities, among these activities is an Interclub Tournament. The members voted on a ladder system as a means of determining a club champion. At the top of the ladder as of last meeting is Kirk Allan a Freshman, second is Mike Emmons, Sophomore, third is Ron Nickerson, Senior, fourth is Jack Gordon, Freshman, fifth is David Stevens, Sophomore, sixth is Sandy Bocchino, Freshman, seventh is Larry Fernald, Freshman, eighth is Ansel Stevens, Sophomore, ninth is Kathy Beal, Junior, tenth is Sandy Jones, Sophomore, eleventh is Jay Colby, Sophomore, twelfth is Donna O'Brien, Sophomore, and the Club treasurer. The club decided to buy new Chess sets and have them belong only to the club. For each tournament game there must be a notation of the moves and at the meeting we replay the game to criticize the individual moves.

Future Business Leaders at Work.

F. B. L. A.

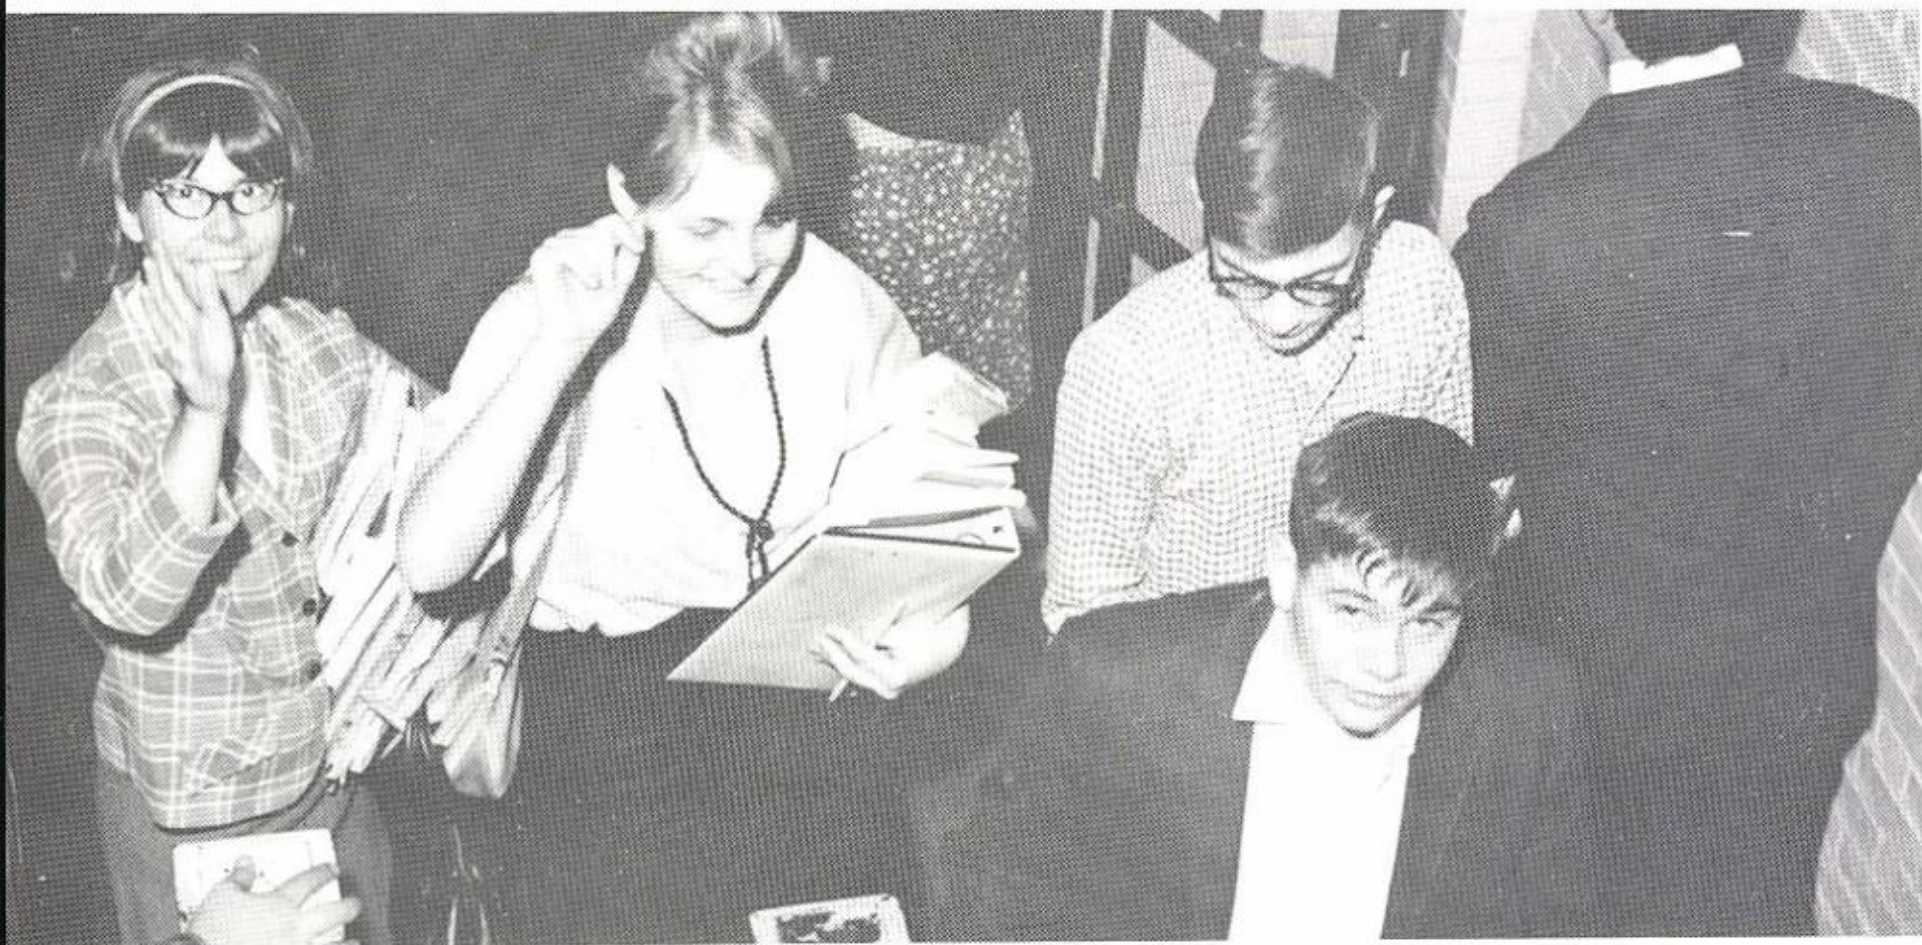

The Future Business Leaders of America, led by Mrs. Bolko, has had a successful year. We had a Spaghetti Supper to raise money for our major undertaking, a trip to New York during April vacation. The girls also worked very hard to make money for a scholarship for a deserving senior girl taking a commercial course

French Club

Looking for an interpreter to take on your vacation to France? Take your choice from the group of well-versed French students who form the French Club. Well, perhaps you won't find exactly the world's greatest linguist but you will have a student that really would be interested in learning more about the country from whence his favorite language is derived. The French Club is going to try to enliven the school year by sponsoring a tremendous party.

Future Homemakers of America

We started the year with an exciting trip to the district meeting at Gorham High School. The project of the meeting was to bring needed articles for the Stevens Institute. We took hair rollers, combs, books, nylon stockings, and jewelry.

We had a foodsale to make some money to help us with our future plans.

We had a combined F.H.A.-F.B.L.A. Christmas Party at Miss Parks apartment. Everyone had a wonderful time and would like another in the future.

Instant Coffee Takes This Long?

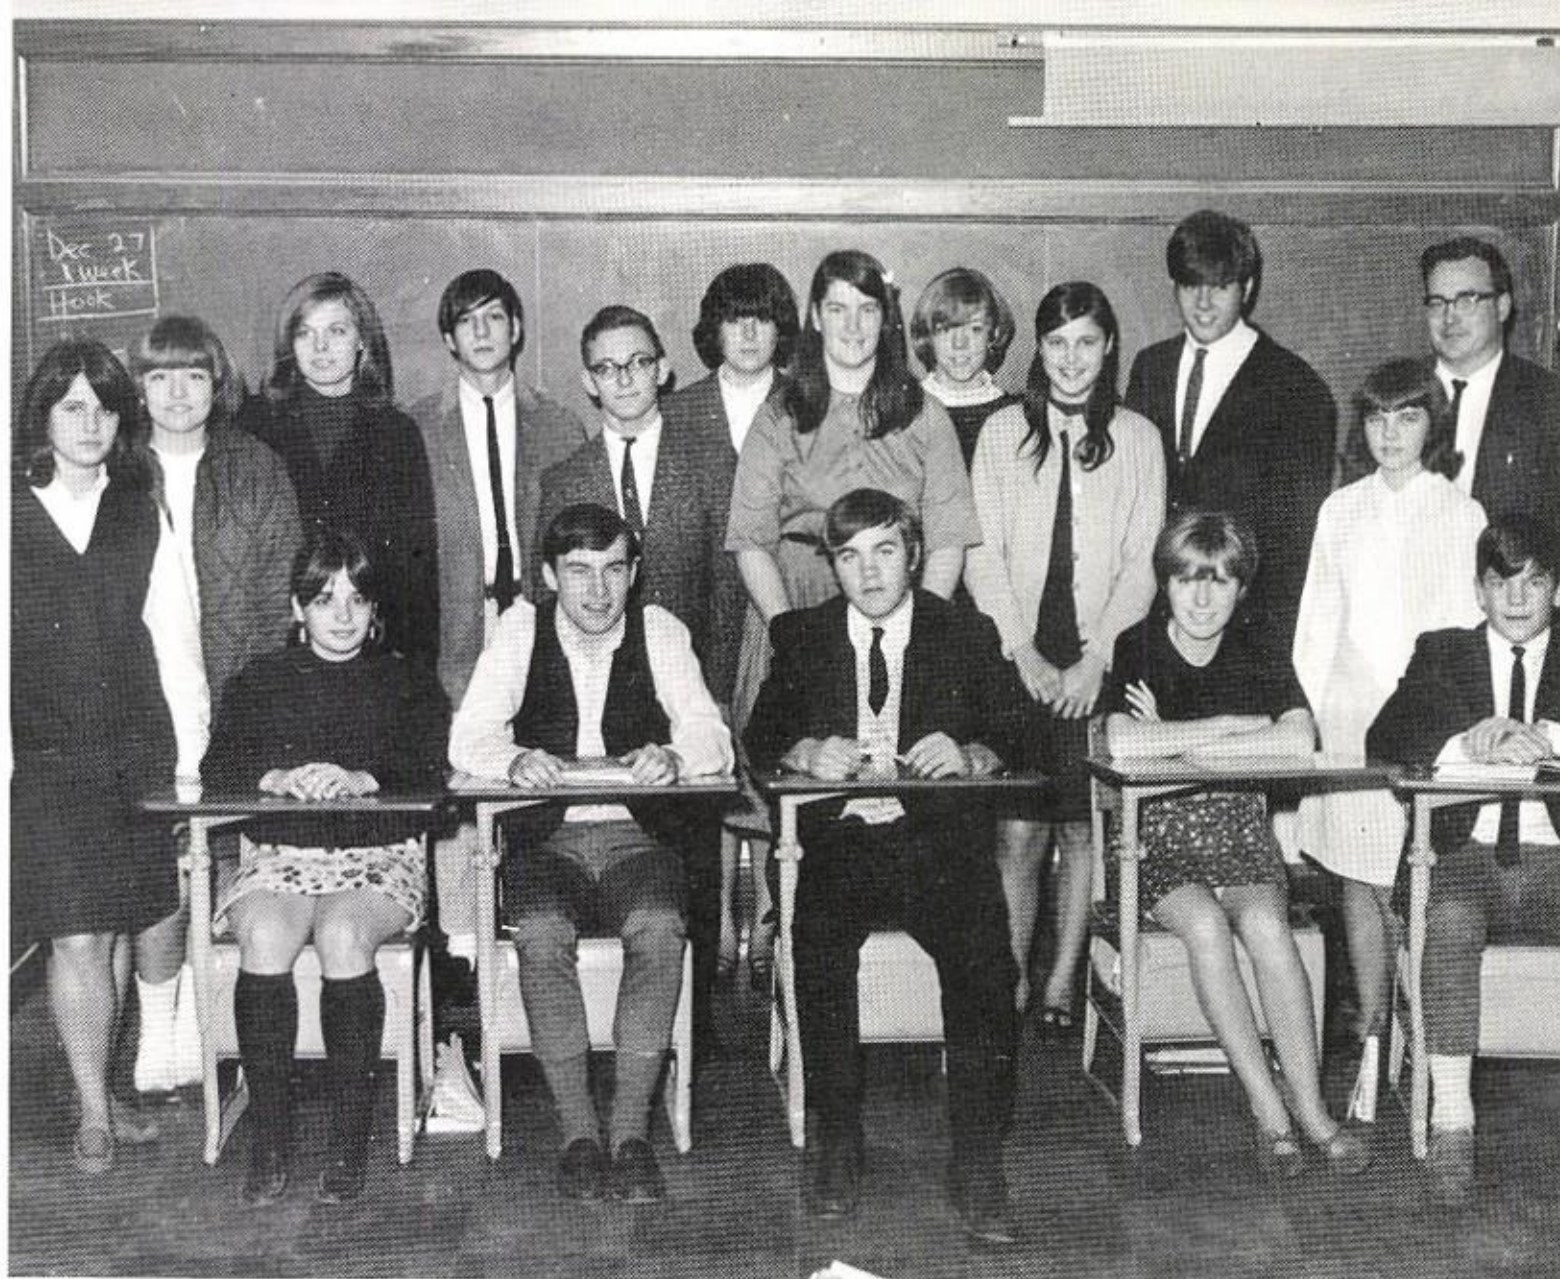

Under the efforts of Mrs. Brazier, the Wells High School Glee Club has put on many enjoyable concerts, such as the Christmas and Spring Concerts, for students, adults, and faculty. All participants in the club are looking forward to the Western Maine Music Festival this spring. The girl's TRIO, this year made up of Kathy Spinney, Nancy Johnson, and Janice Gilford has added to the general spirit of the Glee Club.

German Club

That occult organization, known to most outsiders as the Wells High German Club, smoldered through its second year under the leadership of its renowned Fuhrer-Deutsch professor, Mr. McCluskey. Holding clandestine meetings in out-of-the-way places, this surreptitious organization, composed of only the very elite of W.H.S., continued to be most successful in all its undertakings, notably its second annual Funeral Dance.

The worthwhile goal of the club is to afford the members the opportunity for a better knowledge of Germany and the German people than is possible in the classroom alone. Continuing success seems certain.

Math Team

Our math team this year had a very successful season behind the top scoring of Captain Edmund Chase and junior Tom Keyes. Scoring high in every meet, the "stellar ten" copped second place in their division behind the very large Amesbury High. Under the guidance of Mr. Robert Ellis, this season will mark the beginning of more math team triumphs.

Scores below represent totals as of five meets, with one meet left before the All-Star competition in Massachusetts later in the year.

National Honor Society

The National Honor Society's major undertaking this year was managing the successful Dollars for Scholars campaign. Through cookie sales, contributions, and a dance, we hope to amass some fifteen-hundred dollars. This money will be awarded to deserving Seniors with different qualifications.

With the aide of advisor, Mrs. B. G. Smith, our annual installation went smoothly. Some eleven Seniors and Juniors were inducted into the Society. The ceremony was held at night this year and was attended by many parents and faculty members.

The members of the National Honor Society deserve the respect of all for they have proven themselves in Character, Scholarship, Leadership, and Service.

Newspaper

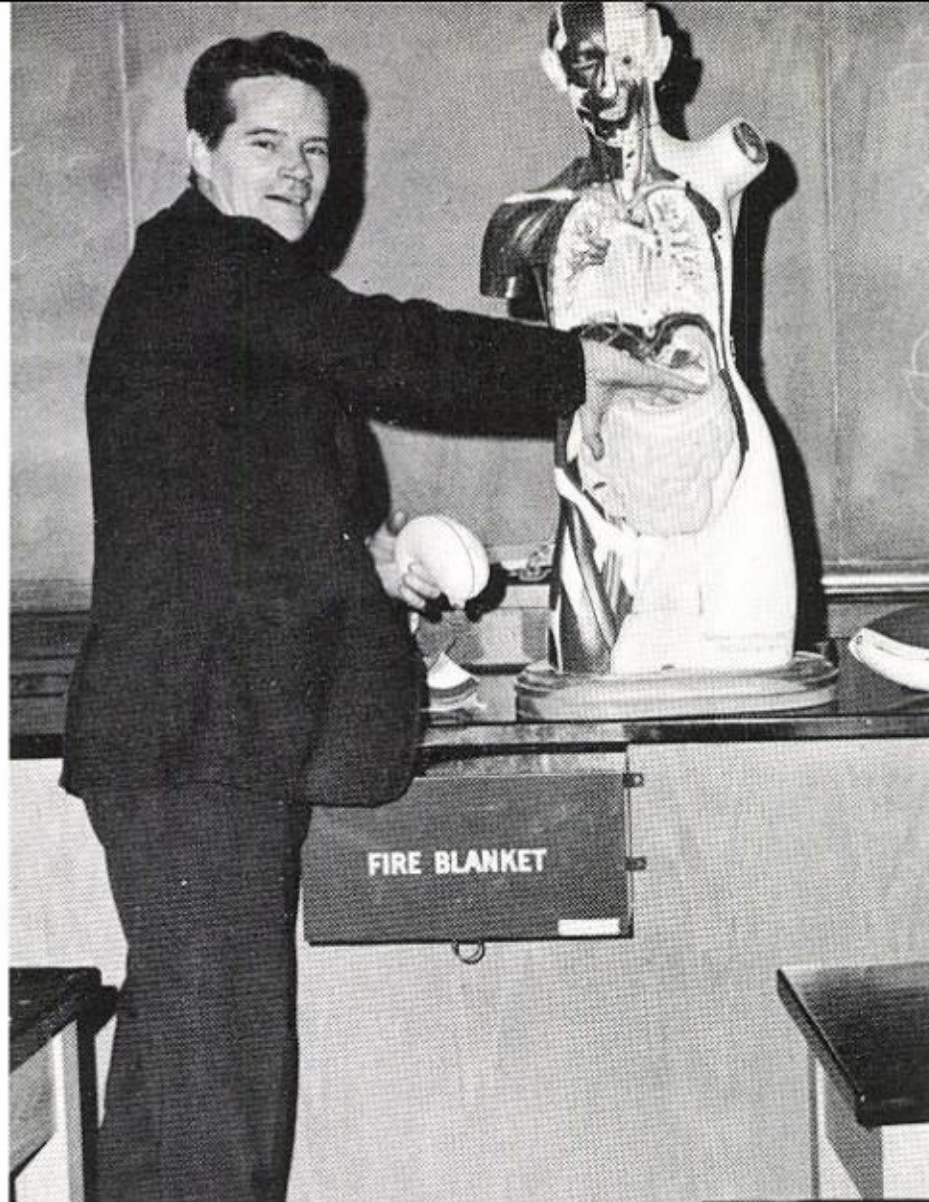

The newly organized "Warrior" has had a good start this year under the supervision of Mrs. Bolko. We have not always had the newspaper out on time, but the work behind it is what counts.

During the Christmas season all of the sales proceeds went to a needy family in the Wells area. At this time we also collected cans of food, which also went to a needy family.

We hope that the newspaper staff next year will have as much success as this year's staff.

Student Council

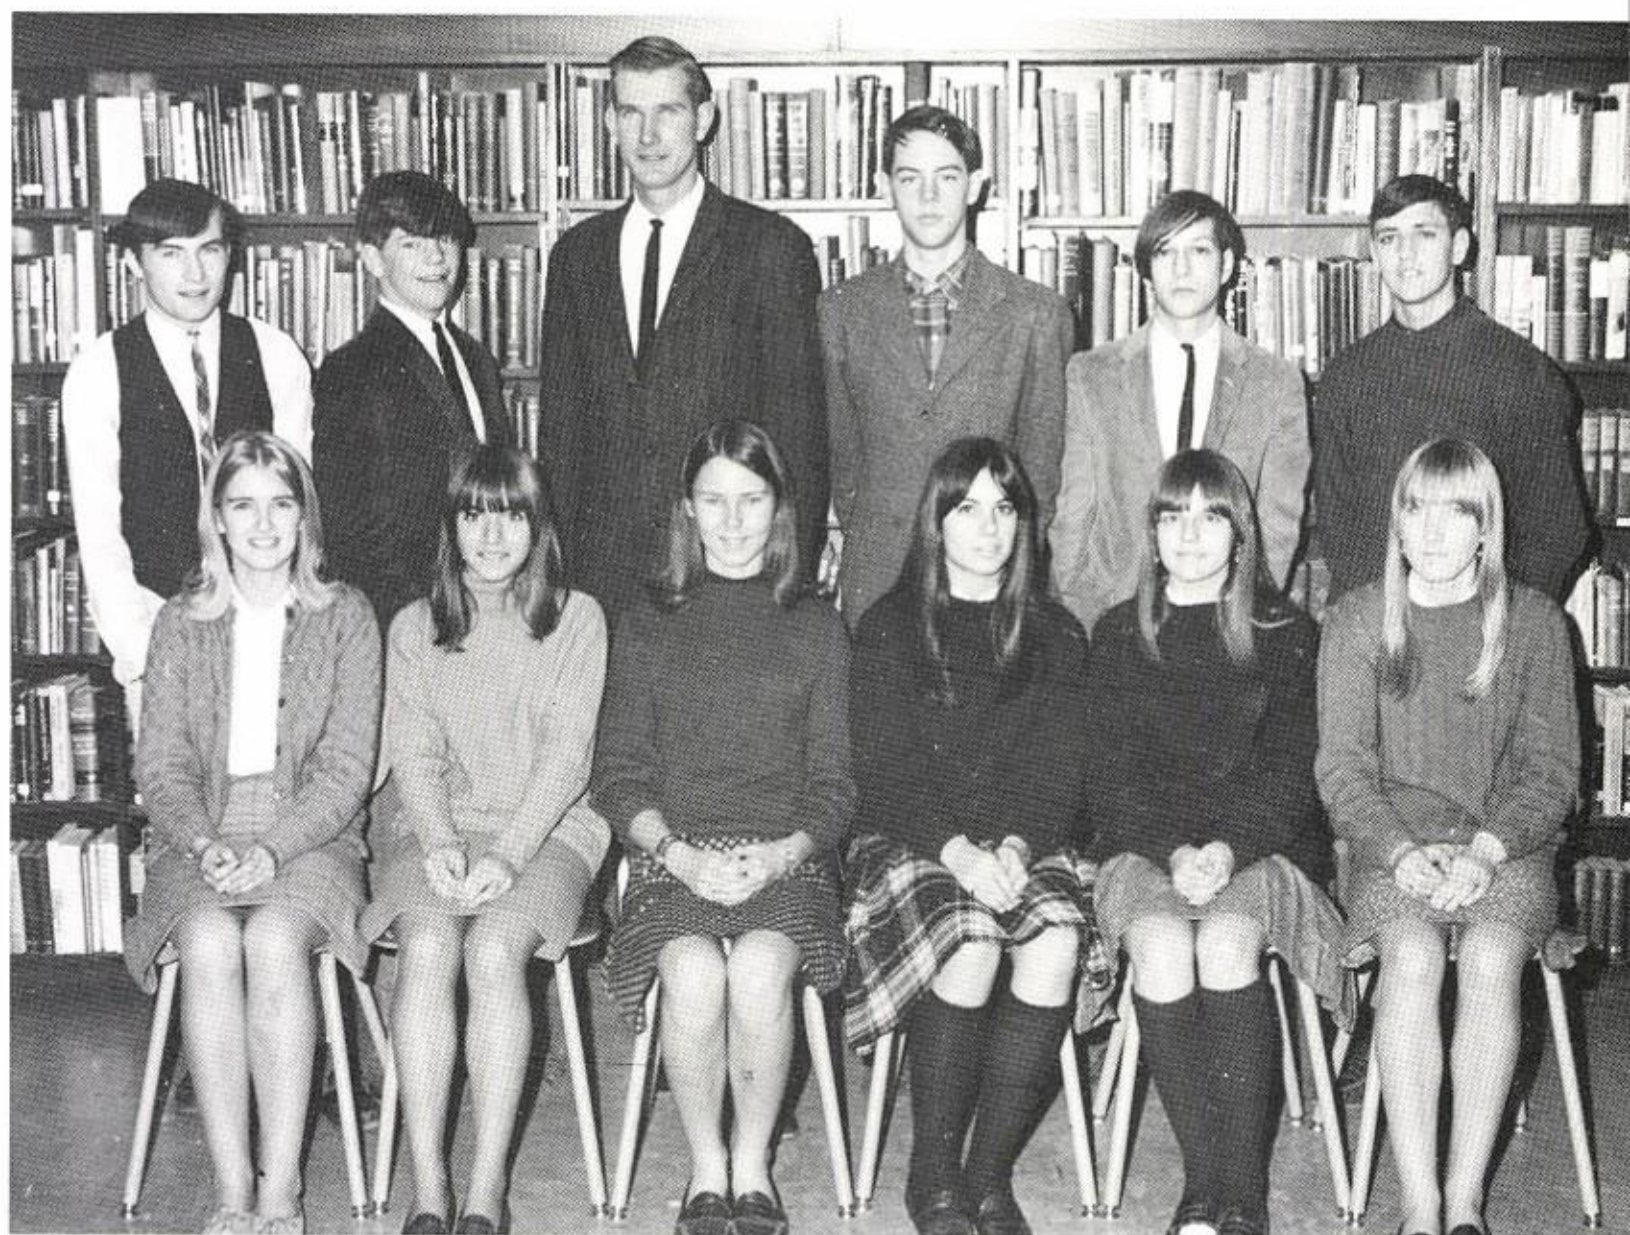

Fulfilling its role as the most respected and dependable organization of all, the student council is an essential part of Wells High School. It maintains a governing and organizing core around which the school operates.

This year, the student council organized a county council in which many areas schools were interested. Also, a point system was set up in order to eliminate inactive and unproductive members. Highlighting this year's program were the adopting of a foreign orphan and the Computer Dance.

To promote a better understanding of our national overseas aid projects, the student council sponsored films of Hope and Care.

Other incidentals which added much to the smooth administration of the school were a calendar covering the hall bulletin board which announced all the activities of the current month and a coat check at certain evening activities for the convenience of the public.

Saturday Afternoon Sorrow

Hero of old?

This year's football team was one of the most colorful if not the best in the history of Wells High. Under the guidance of our new head-coach Bill Champagne and assistant Harry Tomah, and the leadership of Co-captains Stan Littlefield and Jim Wright, the hustle and hard work in practice was an outstanding trait that everyone should be proud of. With a few players returning next year, prospects look good for an outstanding season. Highlights of this season were a 6-6 tie with York and the placing of two players, Tom Chase and James Wright, on the 1966 All-Star Team.

Coach Jim Champlin's harriers had a rebuilding year this year with only two lettermen, (one of them a Senior) on the squad. This year's record was one win, five losses, and one tie, but prospects are good for next year.

The Wells harriers this year were led by Captains Rick Clark and Andy Dufort, who were also number one and two men on the team. Outstanding Sophomore John Hanson is expected to lead a strong team to victory next year.

Highlights of the year were a 28-28 tie with Kennebunk, Rick Clark's two record runs, and Sophomore J. Hanson's fine performance.

Field Hockey

Coach Terri Regan led the Warriorettes to a fine 4-2 record with enthusiasm and school spirit that will seldom be equalled.

The defense was led by co-captains Pat Millard and Rose Galligan. Great efforts by goalie Joanne Jacobson saved many games.

The offensive scoring was led by Anne Galligan, Marcia Hamlyn, Cheryl Brooks and Christine Kostis.

For the first time the girls' varsity field hockey team participated in the state playoffs.

Since no players are graduating, next year is expected to be the best season yet, even though the team will be competing against tougher opponents as they advance into the Portland-Deering League.

Reaching For Glory.

This year's basketball team was the type of team which keeps a town jumping all season long. Sparked by high scorers Andy Dufort (302 points) and Steve Libby (246 points) Wells advanced to a fine 12-4 record. Senior Captain Stan Littlefield's strong defense and rebounding also aided the first team in four years to go to the Lewiston Tournament. Wells bowed out 60-55 in tourney-play after a hard fought battle with Lincoln Academy.

Highlights of the year included wins over York and St. Ignatius, and a record 102 points against Porter High. With only four Seniors out of fourteen players graduating prospects look good for another successful campaign next year.

Varsity Cheerleaders

This year's varsity cheerleaders brought the school spirit at Wells to an all time high, as shown by the bonfire rally before the York game. This rally featured a torch light parade through the streets of Wells, capped by a giant bonfire that was enthusiastically attended by students and adults alike. It is hoped that this will be an annual affair before the York game.

With new cheers and stunts, the cheerleaders carried the spirit into the basketball season. Results of their efforts were a fine 12-4 record for the basketball team and the first tourney birth in four years. This year's squad truly deserves a great deal of credit for a job well done.

Field Hockey

Coach Terri Regan led the Warriorettes to a fine 4-2 record with enthusiasm and school spirit that will seldom be equalled.

The defense was led by co-captains Pat Millard and Rose Galligan. Great efforts by goalie Joanne Jacobson saved many games.

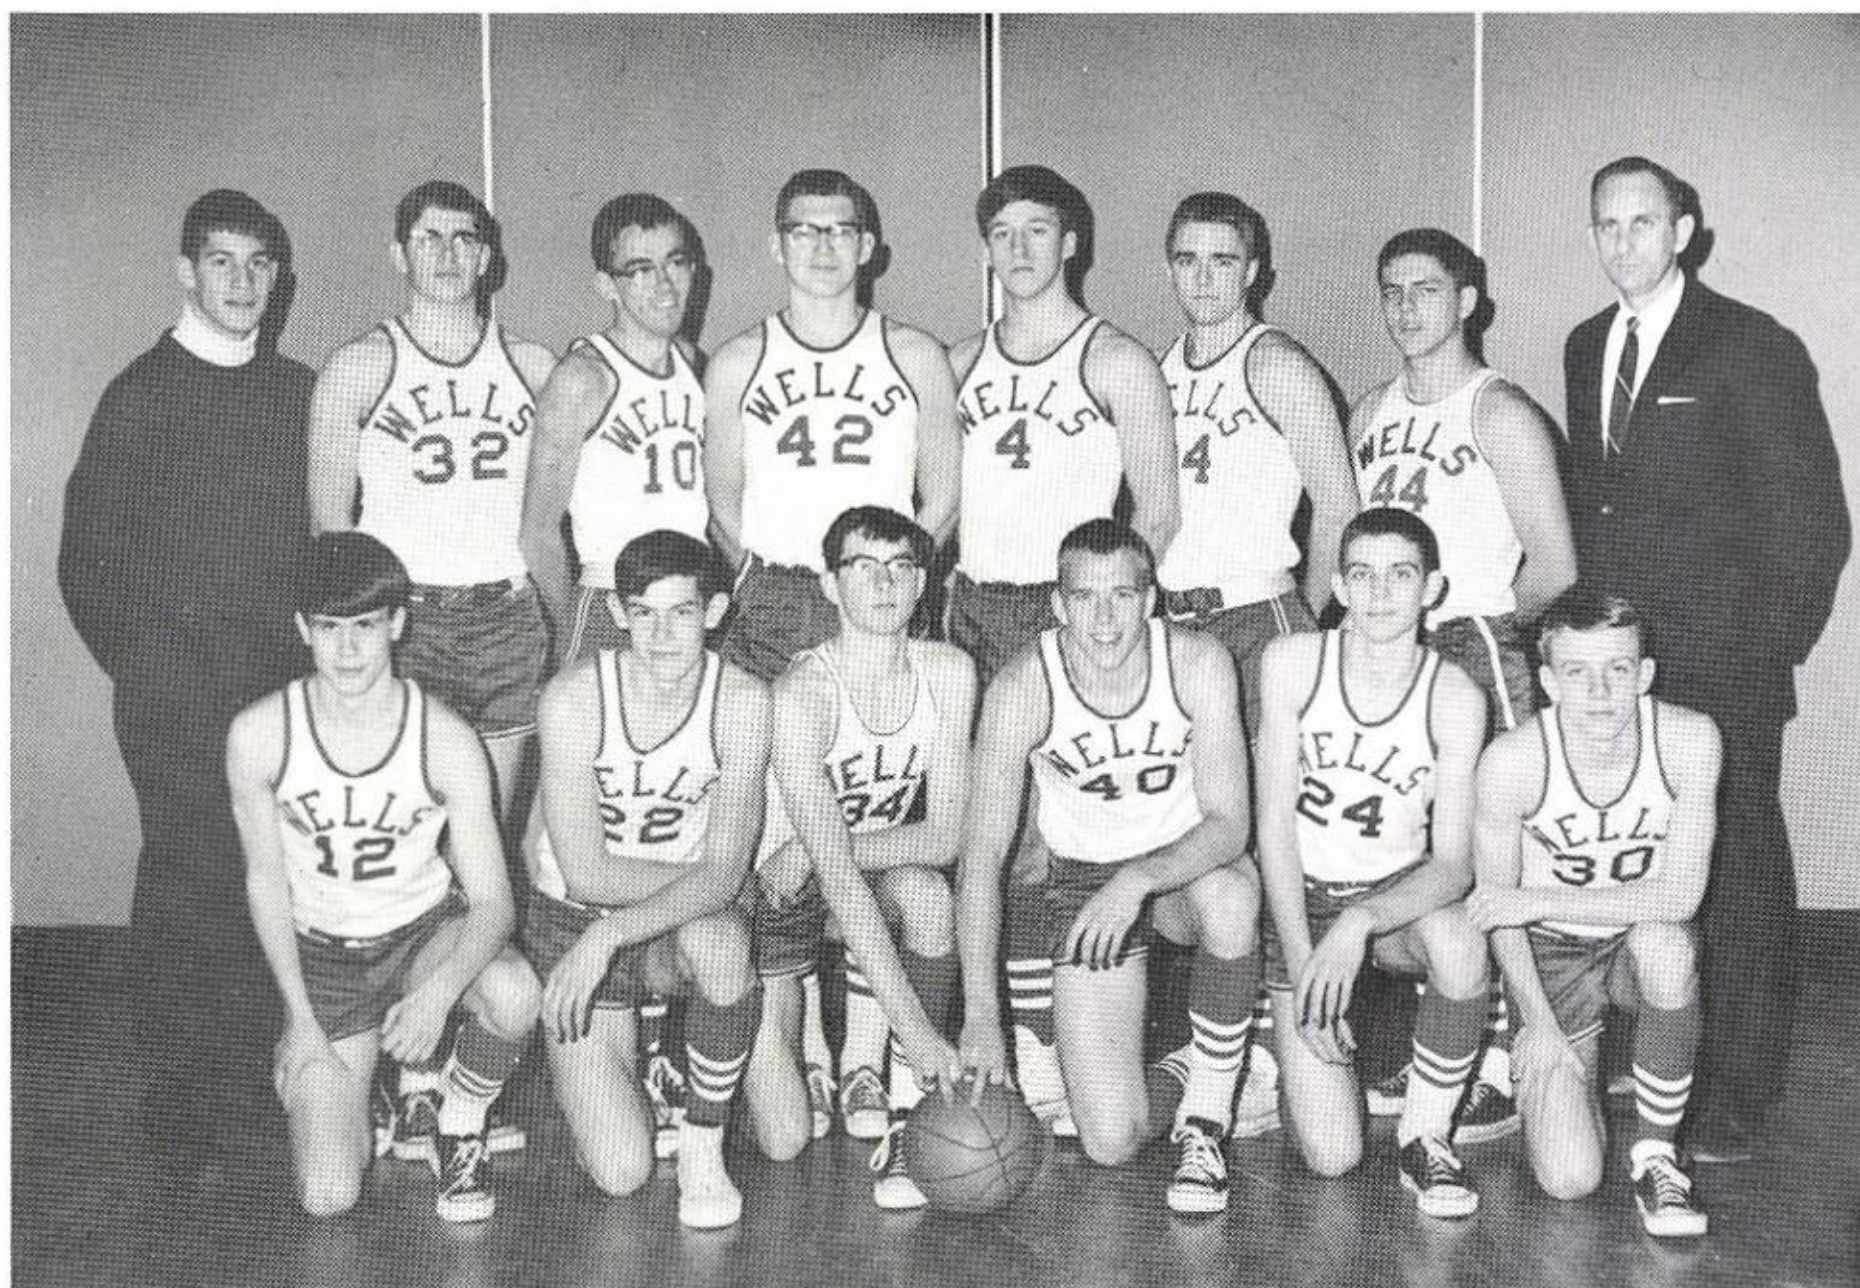

The offensive scoring was led by Anne Galligan, Marcia Hamlyn, Cheryl Brooks and Christine Kostis.

For the first time the girls' varsity field hockey team participated in the state playoffs.

Since no players are graduating, next year is expected to be the best season yet, even though the team will be competing against tougher opponents as they advance into the Portland-Deering League.

Varsity

This year's basketball team was the type of team which keeps a town jumping all season long. Sparked by high scorers Andy Dufort (302 points) and Steve Libby (246 points) Wells advanced to a fine 12-4 record. Senior Captain Stan Littlefield's strong defense and rebounding also aided the first team in four years to go to the Lewiston Tournament. Wells bowed out 60-55 in tourney-play after a hard fought battle with Lincoln Academy.

Highlights of the year included wins over York and St. Ignatius, and a record 102 points against Porter High. With only four Seniors out of fourteen players graduating prospects look good for another successful campaign next year.

Varsity Cheerleaders

This year's varsity cheerleaders brought the school spirit at Wells to an all time high, as shown by the bonfire rally before the York game. This rally featured a torch light parade through the streets of Wells, capped by a giant bonfire that was enthusiastically attended by students and adults alike. It is hoped that this will be an annual affair before the York game.

With new cheers and stunts, the cheerleaders carried the spirit into the basketball season. Results of their efforts were a fine 12-4 record for the basketball team and the first tourney birth in four years. This year's squad truly deserves a great deal of credit for a job well done.

Junior Varsity Cheerleaders

The junior varsity cheerleaders are a group of industrious girls, full of pep and school spirit. They worked hard to earn money for much needed uniforms. They sold delicious food, then meekly wandered to the Texaco station to wash cars. The cold water froze to the half washed cars, but the car wash was a success and the battle to get money was won. Then tired of the same old cheers, they kept working at making up a whole new set of lively cheers. Cheering vigorously paid off with a seven win nine loss season.

We made a basket — go, go, go!
